“ I would like to extend my condolences to the family of James R. Nonemacher. Despite the fact that we spelled Nonnenmocher differently James was apparently my first cousin. His father Clay was my father's older brother. Clay having been born in 1901 and my father in 1903. Even though my father was one of 10 children I was not close to many cousins because most were closer to my father's age than to my age. I am presently 83, still very active, but at the age when I reflect on the past and what might have been. I often regret that I did not know my father's family better. On my mother's side I am an only daughter of an only daughter and had very few family ties on that side of the family. May God be with James' family at this time and may you find peace. love, and support from your friends and family. My thoughts go with you at this difficult time.
