

John H. Lutz

August 27, 2010

John H. Lutz, age 76, of Inglis, FL, died on Monday August 23, 2010 at the Lancaster General Hospital. Born in Reading PA he was the husband of Janet L. Smith Lutz and the son of the late Levi and Lettischia Wenger Lutz. A graduate of Lancaster Bible College, he pastored several churches in Pennsylvania and Florida and was a member of Yankeetown Community Church, Yankeetown, FL.

In addition to his wife, at home, he is survived by three sons Jonathan McCue of Romney, NH, Deeter S. husband of Julie Pry Lutz of Columbia, PA, Jeremy T. husband of Kristin Newcomb Lutz, Fleetwood, PA and a daughter Jennifer E. wife of Paul D. Stevens Elkton, MD, five grandchildren, one brother and two sisters.

A Memorial Service celebrating his life will be held at Refreshing Mountain Camp, Stevens, PA on September 10, 2010 at 3:00 pm.

Tribute Wall

“ John H. Lutz

October 22, 2023 at 11:34 PM

“ JoeReally?Really??You are so high and mighty get off of your pasedtel you've put yourself and your fellow orthodox Christians on for a minute and grow the eff up. YOU do not dicatate how others live their faith. YOU do not know what God wants out of people. YOU are a little girl with a big conservative blog on a big conservative website. Stop pretending you have some sort of enlightened knowledge, just because you happen to connect with the USCCB on some issues. CONGRATS. Jesus. You do realize that the USCCB also shot down Paul Ryan's ridiculous excuse for a budget, right? Just like most people in the country have? You've written some pretty awful blogs, Ms. Lutz, on this site, but this one honestly might take the cake. How about instead of attacking a group of strong women for standing up for what they believe in, for the poor and misfortuned, you go out and do some service yourself. Live a little before your narrow-minded, belligerent mind gets you into any more trouble.

Yusmarizal - December 22, 2015 at 12:03 AM