“ I was thinking about Rod on Monday and wondered where he was. I remember when he showed me how to set up tape recorders to record like Les Paul. He was living in Lancaster at the time. Later when he lived between New Holland and Reading I would stop at his house on the way back from taking guitar lessons from Bill Fisher. We would play guitar for hours. I later saw him with Bill Fisher's D'Angelica guitar which I was familiar with from my lessons. Rod Davis, as he was called then, was always patient in showing me things related to the guitar and I enjoyed the sessions tremendously. I saw him several times since my teenage years playing jazz with George Singer on that D'Angelica.
